NEPAL

Best Time to Visit

It is possible to visit Nepal year round, but spring and autumn are the two most favorable seasons for trekking.

March, April and May (Spring)

These months are considered to be the best in terms of weather and beauty; they are also the busiest months. Days are warm with an occasional rain shower that invites an array of blooming wildflowers, displaying vibrant colors on a lush backdrop. Hikers say it's the most pleasant time to trek.

June, July and August (Monsoon)

The monsoon season brings severe rains making the certain routes impassable. Lodges and trekking operations in some areas are closed during this time, but there are options for trekking around Annapurna and Manaslu which receive significantly less precipitation than the more southerly areas.

Mid-September – November (Autumn)

The weather is dry and skies are generally clear, with mild to warm days and cold nights. Nights can easily drop to below zero freezing temperatures.

November – February (Winter)

Generally dry with daytime temperatures cooler and very cold nights. The days are typically clear with occasional winter storms. Trekking during this mid-winter season can be more challenging in the high altitudes.
